"Hello, is this Europe? It's me, Joe Biden – no, no don't hang up again, I have some great ideas I just know you are going to want to hear! They've already caught on over here and I just know you're going to want to follow along.

"Still there? Hello? Who is this again? You said 'the garderobe.' How do you spell that? Is that 'President Garderobe' or 'Mr. Garderobe'?

"Anyway, as I was saying, we've got things all figured out over here. It's the cat's pajamas. First, you know how the establishment media, academia, and business class in the USA has been demonizing the culture and civilization of White Americans?

"Huh? Hello? ... Well, yeah, I know they technically originate from Europe, but you just have to admit that Whites really are the scum of the earth. Just genocidal parasites. Absolute shit. We can all agree to that, right?

"Hello? Hello? Ok, I'll wait. ...

[Extended silence, punctuated with miscellaneous background noises.]

"Hello? Who is this? What happened to President Garderobe? Is this a different country? 'La cabane de garde?' Must be royalty. Am I right? Should I call you "queen" or "your highness?" Anyway, like I was telling President Garderobe, blacks are the swellest. You need more of them. To begin with, I'm sure you know that all culture comes from blacks. White have no culture. Really.

"OK, you can stop with all the names. I'm not a dummy. Yes, I have heard about Shakespeare and Bach and Goethe and some of the other people you mentioned. But I bet you didn't know that they were all black, or that they stole everything from blacks, or that they really were pretty small-time anyway. Like Shakespeare. He was black. I think. Or he worked in 'Ye Olden Printe Shoppe' and put his name on some black guy's material. Maybe that was it. Anyway, no one cares about Shakespeare. Does anyone nowadays use a single expression, even one, that Shakespeare is supposed to have come up with? Or has anyone ever made a single movie based on something by Shakespeare? Just one?

"OK, you can stop now. It seems like we will just have to disagree for now. But here's something I know you can't dispute: blacks invented everything. ... Sorry, what's that with all those names again? Curie and Jenner and Koch and Diesel and who else? OK, you can stop now. Just check the Google dinglebopper thing: Type in 'American inventors.' I'll wait, you'll see.

They are the ultimate science people. Like that black guy who really invented the light bulb even though Edison gets all the credit. You know, that guy. You know who I mean. The black guy who really invented the light bulb. No, I don't have to give you the name because everyone knows who I mean. Really, do I have to say it? You know. The guy.

“Anyway, Whites commit just about all the violent crime. It's in their nature. Murderous thugs. ... Well, it may not be reflected in FBI statistics, but those are just from Trump and they are wrong. ‘U.S. cities burned to cinder?’ Sorry, haven't heard about that. Must be fake news. The problem we have over here is armed insurrection of White supremacist terrorists. But we are spreading the word that everyone needs to be on the lookout for White supremacist terrorists. It's called ‘surveillance.’ You must have heard of it because it's a French word, but I'm sure no one in Europe understands what a swell idea it is to keep citizens under a constant state of surveillance to make sure that the terrorists don't start an insurrection. I mean, I'm sure no one in Europe every tried anything like that. I'm sure I would have heard about it if they had.

“And that brings me to another great idea that I just have to share. We (and by ‘we’ I mean my administration and my party and all the people who count) have decided that the best way to deal with all of these White supremacist terrorists is to keep them from plotting through the phones and the internets and the Western Union telegraph and with soup cans connected with string and bottles thrown in the ocean and by smoke signals (which they stole of course). Now some people may think the government can't do that, but here's the trick: no limitations on technology companies! They can do whatever they want. Isn't that swell? The laws that apply to the government don't apply to Apple and Google and Amazon and Twitter and the Facebook, and even the Acme Match Company – that's for the smoke signals that they stole from the Indians or probably the blacks because the blacks are the ones who really invented everything.

“Anyway, like I was saying, and here's one of my great ideas, or maybe a great idea that someone gave me: If the tech companies are allowed to stop the White supremacists from talking, we can just outsource the job and no one can complain! Except the White supremacist terrorists, I guess. Or can they complain? I dunno. If they can't talk to one another, it's like one of those ‘tree falls in a forest’ things. Anyway, this seems well-suited for Europe because you have all those White people and nowadays all the Whites are White supremacists, right?

“Alright, so maybe we still disagree about that, but here's another really swell idea, this one on the house: Completely open your borders to the Third World! Er, sorry, I mean ‘undocumented countries.’ Is that what the kids say now? Sorry, I can't always keep track with all these great ideas percolating. Or is it ‘specially developed?’ Anyway, EVERYONE loves this idea, and by EVERYONE, I mean Democrats and the Republicans -- except the Trump voters but they don't count because they're all White supremacist terrorists. And the Republicans say it's just great for the economy, or at least for business, sometimes I'm not clear about the difference. Even the labor unions here think it's a swell idea so it must be good for working folks.

“Speaking of language, which is a really big deal for us, even though they say grammar is racist and shit, we were going to call all these migrants ‘undocumented voters,’ but someone complained about that so we are back to ‘Dreamers’ or ‘predocumented.’ And I'm still confused about the ‘nonbinary’ and ‘intersectionality’ stuff, particularly since when I went into what used to be the ladies room there was a shriek so maybe there are some areas where we aren't quite as hip as we need to be.

“Anyhoo, I know everyone cares about great economic ideas, so here's another one that EVERYONE loves: It's called 'outsourcing.' See, even though the onslaught of predocumented reduces the labor skill level and drives down wages, there are lots and lots of jobs that still pay too much so it's bad for business. So we strike deals with the Third World, er, 'specially developed' countries and they can build factories or prison camps or whatever, and pay their people a nickel an hour to make our computers and running shoes, and even answer the phone when someone calls up to complain. Isn't that just a stroke of genius? I mean, I guess it can be a bit of a problem when you're not sure if you've called your HMO or the curry shop, but most of us (at least everyone I know) has a government plan so it's not really a problem anyway.

“Hello? Hello? Queen de Garde? Still there? By now, you've gotta be impressed with what's coming out of this noggin. And there's lots more where those ideas came from.

“But I want to get to the purpose of my call. I was on the horn with Netanyahu and we (and I guess that means 'he') thinks we need to have a war with some other terrorists. The anti-Semitic ones. No, not the White supremacist ones, at least not now, but the other ones. You're with us on this, right? Hello? Hello? ...

“Shit, not again! Can someone do something about the phone line to Europe? Can someone call the Googlemajig? Aarush, can you do it? You know I can't understand the people at tech support.”
